New Crisis Flares In Miner Pay Talks

BREAK-DOWN SEEN NEAR IN NEGOTIATIONS

Northern Operators See Small Chance of Agreement, Ask Contract Renewal.

LEWIS REJECTS PLAN

Southern Owners Say They'll Ask Intervention of WLB Immediately.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Another crisis developed in bituminous coal negotiations today after northern Appalachian operators said their negotiating committee "believes that further conferences for collective bargaining will not be able to consummate an agreement."

The conference will continue today when, said Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators' group, a proposal by the operators that the present contract be continued for the duration will be discussed. O'Neill said it would be submitted later to President Roosevelt and proper government authorities.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, said, however, the miners indicated "it was not necessary to put the proposal to a vote to insure our rejection of it."

Southern operators, meanwhile, issued a statement saying they would ask at once for a war labor board intervention in the dispute over a new contract for 450,000 soft coal miners retroactive to April 1. Miners are continuing at work on the basis of the contract which expired March 31.

The deadlock between the operators and the union as reflected by statements made yesterday raised the threat of the possible collapse of contract negotiations and brought from Dr. John R. Steelman, U. S. conciliation service head, the comment, "Enough has been said now to indicate that this conference is in rather a bad way at this time."

ENTERS WAR

Bolivian President Decrees Mobilization Against Axis.

LA PAZ, Bolivia—(U.P.)—Bolivia went to war against the Axis today under a special presidential decree ordering mobilization and setting up the national defense council as a permanent body.

President Enrique Penaranda Del Castillo signed the decree last night declaring the nation at war on the side of the United Nations.

Bolivia's action resulted in reports that other South American nations, notably Peru and Chile, might follow her soon. Bolivia and Brazil are the only South American countries formally to enter the war although most others have broken relations with the Axis.

HELP ASKED

Goble Asks Boards Aid in Getting Men for War Jobs.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Ohio selective service boards today were asked to assist the U. S employment service in recruiting men for war plants

Col. C. W. Goble, state draft director, pointed out that many registrants physically unqualified for military service are available for civilian war jobs. Goble asked local boards to inform these registrants that they may apply to U. S. employment service offices.

Women, Townships Have Big War Bond Tasks

Two Special Drives To Be Launched for County Quota.

Two special campaigns will be a part of the $6,649,000 second War Loan drive which opens in Richland county next Monday, H. G Brunner and P. M. Elliott, co-chairmen of the drive, announced today.

A goal of $150,000 has been set for the women's committee of the drive with Mrs. Louis J. Ott acting as chairman of the committee. The 18 townships in the county will make an effort to raise $300,000 as their share in the huge campaign which has $13,000,000,000 as its national goal.

"They Give Their Lives — You Lend Your Money" is the national slogan for the drive. The Richland county committee has chosen as a slogan for the campaign here, "Buy An Extra Bond a Month" to urge persons who are already buying bonds through the payroll plan to buy additional ones.

The News-Journal and newspapers all over the country are throwing all their promotional resources into the drive at the request of the treasury department.

"Outfitting an outfit," is the slogan of the drive to be carried on by the Women's division." The $150,000 in war bond sales which they hope to complete will fully equip 1,000 men, a number slightly larger than a battalion.

Mrs. Ott and her committee will contact women's clubs throughout the city setting up for these organizations a minimum quota of $3,000 each. The women's committee has been a very active organization in war bond sales. Eliot today complimented them on their fine work in the past and expressed the belief that they would be as successful in the present drive.

Other plans for the campaign will be made at a meeting of the representatives of the various clubs with the committee Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

RECORD STATE BUDGET BILL BEFORE SENATE

Catlett Defends $366,460,921 Measure as Dems Attack Bricker 'Extravagance.'

CALLS IT 'DISHONEST'

Huml Assails Appropriations, 8 Democratic Amendments Meet With Defeat.

With Richland county's Republican representative, John L. Catlett at least twice coming to the defense of the Bricker administration in the face of Democratic attacks, the house of the Ohio assembly late yesterday passed and sent to the senate the largest general appropriation bill in Ohio history.

The bill, calling for the expenditure of $366,460,921, was passed by a vote of 106 to 24, the vote being strictly along party lines—supported without exception by Republicans and opposed, likewise without exception by Democrats.

None of the several attacks made on the measure by Democrats was given consideration, dispatches from Columbus said.

One was that made by Democratic Representative Lody Huml, Cleveland.

Huml, according to International News Service dispatches, introduced an amendment to slash $35,000,000 from the bill, but admitted ruefully that he didn't "expect it to get very far."

"I'm against the budget because it's dishonest on its face, because it contains expenditures which cannot and will not be made, and because it places the legislative stamp of approval on Bricker extravagance," he asserted.

"There is need for a thorough investigation into the administration of old age pensions. The budget calls for a $9,800,000 increase in pensions, but cuts the appropriation for auditing them by $118,000. This is pure politics, and solely because the auditor (Joseph T. Ferguson) is a Democrat."

He decried "snooper bureaucracy" in the administration of old age pensions, and declared that Bricker in four years had spent $281,000,000 more than did his

Legislators Demand Another Pay-as-You-Go Tax Plan.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — There were indications today that the house ways and means committee may give in to demands for a new pay-as-you-go income tax plan.

Democrats and Republicans are trying to force immediate action. Republican members kept a running fire of speeches on the house floor yesterday warning that the government stands to lose huge sums unless some kind of pay-as-you-earn system is started before June 15, when the second quarterly installment on 1942 taxes come due.

Democrats circulated their members with a letter urging the ways and means committee to resubmit tax legislation without further hearings.

Patton's and Montgomery's Men Rip Axis Rearguards After Junction Of Two Armies In South; Air Arm Pounds Enemy Columns.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—The British First army gained four or five miles by a surprise attack in the Medjez-El-Bab bulge area yesterday as the Second U. S. Army corps and the British Eighth army united in a relentless pursuit of the enemy in the south, it was announced today.

The First army's advance in the northern sector carried its vanguards to within less than 27 airline miles of Tunis, Nazi-held capital of the French protectorate.

More prisoners were rounded up in both northern and southern sectors and Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's positions again were blasted and shot up by Allied aerial squadrons.

The Second U. S. corps of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, jr., and Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth army collaborated like two woodsmen at the ends of a crosscut saw to rip Rommel's rearguards from their positions.

A communique disclosed that the Eighth army, after smashing the Wadi El Akarit position 20 miles north of Gabes at dawn Tuesday, repulsed determined enemy counter-attacks in heavy fighting that afternoon

Marshal Rommel apparently then abandoned all hope of holding out in that area and, realizing that his big armored formations in front of the Americans along the Gafsa-Gabes road were in an untenable position, began a withdrawal under the cover of darkness Tuesday night.

General Patton's Americans immediately pushed ahead, clearing up pockets of resistance which Rommel had left behind and clashing at times with the withdrawing armor itself to attain a point 25 to 30 miles east of El Guetar.

It was at this point that the Americans encountered advanced patrols of the Eighth army yesterday afternoon.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Allied commander in chief, congratulated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander and all serving under him today on the victories which led to the junction. Alexander is Eisenhower's deputy in charge of land operations. Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson commands the British First army.

Enemy columns retreating toward the port of Sfax, and tanks, transports and troops, were hammered by Allied air forces. Fourteen enemy aircraft were shot down in air combat for a loss of one Allied plane, and Allied anti-aircraft batteries in the northern sector destroyed three more.

Six times as many Italians as Germans were among the Axis prisoners taken, for Rommel still was leaving Italians behind to cover the withdrawal of his German fighters, but the proportion of Germans ran much higher among the prisoners captured by the Americans. The enemy paid the Second corps the compliment of sending some of the best Nazi units against it.

The Americans' struggle against Axis armor, which had advan-

WITH AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES EAST OF EL GUETAR—Collapse of last enemy strongholds in the area east of El Guetar began this afternoon following a combined frontal assault by Allied tanks and infantry and a tank assault by French units from the south slopes of Djebel Berda.

Battle-tried American troops, led by veterans of 1918, and units of Britain's famed eighth army, marched together against the Axis forces fleeing to the northeast.

Shouted greetings of "Hi Ya, Tommy" and "Hi, Yank" echoed across the foothills southeast of El Guetar as the two forces met amid a thunderous bombing and strafing barrage being carried out against Axis columns by Allied air forces.

The rate and magnitude of the Axis withdrawal to the northeast was stepped up considerably as the Britons and Americans closed ranks.

Our forces then began moving forward virtually unopposed. The mine fields and the entrenched artillery of sacrificial rear guard forces ahead will determine the speed of the advance, but the exploitation phase definitely has been reached.

The junction of the eighth army armored unit and the second United States army corps was effected under circumstances of high drama on the southern slopes of the Djebel Chemsi ridge.

Actual physical contact was

NERVOUS: Bomb-Jittery Japs Issue 2 Warnings In 24 Hours

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(AP)—American fighter planes destroyed 37 Japanese aircraft in a sky battle over the southeastern Solomon islands Wednesday, the navy announced today, when the enemy struck at American shipping off Guadalcanal with an armada of 98 planes. Seven American fighters were lost but one pilot was rescued.

(By Associated Press)

Japan had a fresh attack of "bomb jitters" today as the Tokyo radio for the second time in 24 hours warned the Japanese people a new American bombing assault might come at any time "either from the China continent, the Aleutians or from aircraft carriers."

The U. S. Office of War Information said Tokyo broadcasts recalled it was just short of a year ago that Maj.-Gen. James H. Doolittle's bombers made their first sweeping raid on Japanese mainland cities—April 18.

Aside from President Roosevelt's whimsical reference to a "Shangrila" base, the take-off point of Doolittle's raiders had never been officially disclosed, but it is known that new bomb-Japan airfields have been constructed in China during the past few months.

Elsewhere in the Far Pacific war theater, the British command announced British artillery had smashed Japanese attempts to advance in the Indian region in Burma, with the enemy withdrawing after suffering heavy losses.

Imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted Japanese troops had "destroyed" large British forces

NEW SHIFT DUE IN DRAFT RULES

Order Dropping Class 3-B Expected To Be Issued By Monday.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Reclassification of draft registrants under a new national regulation, highlighted by elimination of the 3-B classification, was reported today to be scheduled to start Monday.

National selective service headquarters continued the silence it has maintained despite circulation of unofficial reports for more than a week. But an official statement is expected Monday.

The 3-B classification, which includes all men having dependents and working in essential activities, regardless of what job they hold was established last July 15.

Besides eliminating it, unofficial reports said, the new regulations will:

Require reclassification to 1-A of all men outside of farming except those defined as fathers under selective service rules, those individually essential to essential activities, and those whose induction would mean extreme hardship to dependents.

Reserve the 3-A classification exclusively for fathers—those living in a bona fide family relationship with children conceived before induction of the fathers appeared imminent, and in no case born later than Sept. 14, 1942.

Create a new classification, 3-D, for deferment of single or childless married men whose induction would cause extreme hardship to dependents.

LaGuardia Fails To Get an Army Uniform--Now

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said today that the plan for commissioning Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York in the army had been abandoned, at least for the present.

La Guardia offered his services to the war department Tuesday, Stimson told a press conference, but after some discussion it was decided that La Guardia could be most useful at this time by continuing as mayor.

Stimson said that is where the matter stands now. La Guardia assured Stimson that his services were available at any time they were needed.

The proposal for La Guardia to enter the army came up considerably before this Tuesday. Nearly two weeks ago, White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said he understood the mayor was going into uniform.

County, District Black-Out Test Starts at 9:25 Tonight

Mansfield and Richland county will join 20 other counties tonight in the first black-out test ever attempted in the Mansfield area as the state gets down to the serious business of preparing for attack from enemy bombers which it hopes will never come.

Tonight's test, due to start at 9:25 p. m., will climax the two test dim-outs the city and county have participated in during recent weeks. There will be a big difference tonight, however, for every light in the city, except possibly a few in industrial plants on war production, will be out.

Residents and business district lights and street lights will be blotted out with the first steady note of the sirens at 9:25 p. m. today. The traffic lights downtown will continue to operate and travel may move slowly with lights dimmed.

At 9:40 p. m. the wailing note of the sirens will be the signal for all remaining lights to be turned out and for all traffic to halt. Officers have urged pedestrians to seek shelter at this signal. Eighteen shelters will be open in the downtown section. In the residential areas, air raid wardens will warn pedestrians to go to their homes or otherwise seek shelter.

The total black-out will continue until the steady note of the sirens sounds at 9:50 p. m. At that time, however, traffic will be permitted to move again with caution and pedestrians may leave shelters.

Five minutes later, at 9:55 p. m., the black-out will end and lights in homes and business places may be turned on again.

Unknown to the average civilian, the OCD volunteers will mobilize at 9:05 p. m. at the secret code signal which will be telephoned to OCD centers in the city and county.

Fire watchers will be posted on top of a number of buildings

Here's Black-Out Schedule

9:25 p. m.—Caution signal will sound. At steady blast of sirens all lights in homes, business places, and street lights must be blacked out. Automobiles may moves at reduced speed with lights dimmed and pedestrians must walk with caution.

9:40 p. m.—Rising and falling sound of sirens denote signal for all remaining lights to go out, traffic to stop, and pedestrians to seek shelters or go inside. All lights in buildings and on cars must be turned out.

9:50 p. m.—Steady note of sirens denotes signal for traffic lights to be turned on and motor and pedestrian traffic to move again with caution. Lights in homes and business buildings must remain out and headlights on cars must be dimmed.

9:55 p. m.—All-clear signal will sound. Lights in homes and business buildings may be turned on and traffic will resume at normal pace.

Plane Trip for Serum Futile As Death Takes Mansfielder

Kenneth F Beabout, 27, for whom two Civilian Air Patrol fliers defied driving snow and sleet to rush a vial of serum to Mansfield from Toledo by air yesterday, died at Crestline hospital last night.

Beabout was injured in an accident in the Crestline railroad yards last Thursday evening. Both of his legs were badly mangled when he was crushed between two boxcars. He was rushed immediately to the Crestline hospital where gangrene developed in one of his legs.

A search for gas gangrene serum brought the call to the Mansfield airport where Otis Cummins and Erwin D. Jacobson, CAP fliers, flew to Toledo where a package of the serum was awaiting for them at the control tower. They brought the serum here in slightly more than two hours.

Beabout had been employed at the Crestline yard since Jan. 29. A resident of Mansfield for the past three years, he made his home on Fairfax avenue. He was born June 8, 1915 at Wellston, O.

Surviving are his widow, Nedra; a son, Jerry Douglas; a daughter, Kay Naudine; his mother, Mrs. Jessie Beabout of Wellston; three brothers, Raymond E. of Wellston, Earl M. of Bridgeport, William H. of Gallipolis; two sisters, Mrs. Clifford Johnson of Jackson and Miss Vada Beabout of Wellston.

The body has been removed to the Geiger funeral home where services will be conducted Friday at 2 p. m. with Rev. D. N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiating. Saturday the body will be sent to St. Clairsville, O., for burial in Memorial park.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—When I read in the paper about how so many college students don't know who was president of the United States during the Civil war, I lose my nerve about trying to write this column on the subject of the proposed international stabilization fund.

If college students don't know any more than that, what can be expected of less fortunate persons? So why write this stuff at all? Why try to pass on information about matters that are important? Why not let the government run things and not annoy the public with dispatches? If college students think William James was a bank robber, then why try to put information into the newspapers?

Clapper

I heard Secretary Morgenthau answer questions for an hour about the international stabilization fund that he has tentatively offered to other governments for general discussion. I also heard Dr. Henry White, who prepared the plan, discuss it at some length.

Secretary Morgenthau said that this plan, and discussion of it would spur new hope among oppressed countries.

For instance Yugoslavia, broke, oppressed, fighting in the hills, with only a small dab of gold, could never hope to get going alone after the war. But the people of Yugoslavia will hear of this plan and they will take new heart. Secretary Morgenthau said they will know, when they hear about this stabilization plan. That the United Nations are working out plans so that oppressed peoples can re-establish their trade when their Nazi oppressors are defeated.

We will hope that the people of Yugoslavia will be more responsive to the information about the international stabilization fund than the American college students were to questions in the New York Times Sunday.

The international stabilization fund is not a bank. It won't lend money. It is not a postwar rehabilitation development corporation. It is not going to lend money to build dams on the Danube.

This is a proposition to restore gold as a yardstick for trade all over the world. It is a proposition to prevent weak countries from ruining themselves and everybody else by depreciating their currency as the Germans did after the last war. It is a proposition to make it possible for each nation, no matter how small and weak, to find a place in world trade.

Yugoslavia has only a little gold. She would have to put some or all of it into the stabilization fund. She would put in some currency—in other words some of her credit. On that Yugoslavia would be assigned a number of unitas—which are the proposed units of international trade and would be worth $10 gold—and with which she could trade anywhere. The international stabilization fund would thus make a demonstration of faith while requiring assets as well to the extent that they are available.

You ask why not insist on full coverage with gold assets? Some countries do not have those assets. The alternatives would be to let them stew, with the chance of extreme depression producing revolutions, or else financing them with foreign loans as we did the last time.

This plan is considered to make it possible to help them in a more businesslike way.

The fund would fix exchange rates of the various currencies, would control all changes in those rates, and would prevent competitive depreciation of currency, which is a favorite way of undercutting the other fellow in hard times.

Member countries would have voting power in proportion to their subscriptions to the fund. No country could have more than 25 per cent of the total votes. But on important decisions 80 per cent of the votes are required to act. So that the countries putting the most gold into the fund would be apt to hold a veto power over the decisions.

That is stuck in there so we won't be mistaken for saps while proposing a plan to help the world back to normal international trade, through regular trade and private finance channels.

WILLKIE BOOK DEMANDS EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

Describes Trip Around World, Hits North Africa Policy, Calls Stalin 'Able.'

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Wendell L. Willkie's account of his bomber flight around the world in 1942 was published today in book form under the title "One World," with its theme a statement that after the war America must join in "the creation of a world in which there shall be an equality of opportunity for every race and every nation."

The book, parts of which Willkie had presented previously in speeches and articles, urged that "the time is approaching when we must once more determine whether America will assume its proper position in world affairs, and we must not let that determination be again decided by mere party strategy."

Willkie was sharply critical of the administration's North African policy as a "tragedy," the official explanation of which caused a feeling that "diplomacy once more, in devious ways, (was) trading away the principles which we had proclaimed to the world."

"Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt are not the only leaders whose words and activities in the light of their proclamations are being watched," he wrote. "The failure of Mr. Stalin to announce to a worried world Russia's specific aspirations with reference to eastern Europe weigh the scales once more against the proclaimed purposes of leaders."

Willkie described his 31,000-mile bomber journey through Egype, the Middle East, Russia, and China and his talks with such leaders as Premier Josef Stalin as a "hard man, perhaps even a cruel man, but a very able one."

There can be "no enduring peace, no economic stability" unless the United States and Russia "work together," he said, and pointed out that "the industrialization of Russia will require a limitless amount of American products, and Russia has unlimited natural resources that we need."

Of China, he said: "The tendency of many of our leaders to let the war fall apart into a first-class war and a second-class war still frightens me . . . either we win the war in full partnership with the Chinese in Asia, as with the British and the Russians and the occupied nations in Europe, or we shall not really have won it."

DEFERRED U. S. WORKERS FACE NEW DRAFT RULE

WMC Finds Million Eligibles Now on Federal Payroll, 54,000 Excused.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Faced with estimates that more than 54,000 government workers have obtained draft deferments, the war manpower commission today planned to issue new regulations that will send many of the 1,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 38 now on the federal payroll into the army.

Within the next few days, it was learned, Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, will issue at the request of the WMC instructions to all local draft boards to deny deferments to federal workers unless they are given so-called "certificates of government request."

The action was recommended on March 10 by a committee appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate reports that the government was a "haven for draft dodgers."

The committee, headed by Paul Bellamy, Cleveland editor, found that "slackers are few" in the government but charged that federal bureaus were not using "the vigor necessary" to replace draft eligible men with women and older and handicapped workers.

The Bellamy report also recommended creation of a committee to streamline and co-ordinate draft machinery governing deferments of federal employees. The latter committee, composed of Robert Barnett of the WMC, Kenneth Vipond of civil service and Col. Edward A. Fitzpatrick of national draft headquarters, is using the Bellamy report as its guidebook.

The report declared that "it is estimated that approximately 1,000,000 federal employes are men of the ages from 10 to 37, inclusive." It also fixed the percentage of deferments among the 3,000,000 federal workers at 1 4-5 per cent and added that at the time it made its investigation there were about 110,000 government employes in Class 1-A.

With other regulations governing the order of induction for fathers to be announced within two weeks, the instructions regarding the "certificates of government request" will affect reclassification of all government workers.

IN HOLLYWOOD-- By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—Good neighbor policy, Hollywood style. Danish actor Preben Storn, with a big farm in the hills near Sunland, was recuperating from an appendectomy when the heavy rains came, swelling the river and making it difficult to bring in fodder for his livestock and poultry. Without help, and himself helpless, he would have had to watch his animals and birds grow lean instead of fat for Uncle Sam. Johnny Mack Brown heard about it, and sent out a call for a "posse." He rounded up a gang of movie and real cowboys. Instead of the familiar cry, "We'll head 'em off at Eagle Pass," they yelled for mules, hauled in 4,000 pounds of feed, thus saved the food situation from getting worse.

Humphrey Bogart's tank out on the desert for "Somewhere In Sahara" is named Lulubelle. Lulubelle got her name simply because that was the name of the girl Sergeant Gunn (Bogart) wants to forget—the little number who gave him the brush-off in Newark one spring night. She thus becomes one more in the movies' list of non-human heroines—the destroyers of "In Which We Serve" and "Stand By for Action," the bomber of "Air Force," the tradition-laureled house of "Forever and a Day."

Two screen writers, good friends, had a quarrel. For several months they did not speak. Then one day one of them, realizing he was in the wrong, apologized. Everything was sweetness and light again. Immediately the first invited the remorseful one to dinner. On the appointed night, sitting around the table with their respective wives, the host announced that, in token of their newly revived friendship, he and his wife were presenting their guests with a prize pet—a pedigreed cat.

It was a lovely evening, except for one thing. The writer and his wife both detest cats. Especially after a couple of weeks when that particular cat was ruining their furniture, their rugs, their dispositions.

Periodically, the donors call up to ask how their gift is getting along. The recipients quite frankly say that it is thriving. Diplomatically, they neglect to add what it is doing to them. The friendship is still beautiful.

PLAN ACTION

Boards Seek To Eliminate 'Dead Man's' Crossing.

Moving to eliminate "Dead Man's" crossing on Trimble road, the scene of several fatal accidents, county commissioners today unanimously adopted a resolution to re-route the road.

By the proposal, the road would be located along the Pennsylvania railroad tracks, eliminating the B. and O. and Pennsylvania crossings. Commissioners plan to view the present road and the proposed site of the new one April 19 with 10 a. m., April 26 set as the date for final hearing.

A similar proposal to eliminate the crossing several years ago met with opposition leading to its defeat. Trimble road connects Bowman street and Cook road, passing over State Route 39. The section which would be changed, by terms of the resolution, is located about four miles beyond the northwestern city limits.

WARNS AGAINST PARITY CHANGE

Brown Fears Pace Bill Passage Would Cause Collapse of Price Control.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price administrator Prentiss M. Brown today told the senate agriculture committee that price control may collapse if the Pace farm parity bill becomes law.

Brown declared that the bill, which redefines parity prices to include all farm labor costs, would boost the parity price on farm products 14 per cent and smash many existing price ceilings.

"My task would be made more difficult—indeed, it well might become impossible—if the bill before this committee were to become law," he said.

Brown appeared following action of the senate yesterday in referring President Roosevelt's veto of the Bankhead bill to the agriculture committee. The Bankhead measure would prohibit deduction of farm benefit payments in calculating ceiling prices.

The action, by a 62 to 23 vote, was taken at the request of farm bloc leaders after it became apparent that they could not force passage of the Bankhead bill over a presidential veto.

At the same time, the farm bloc gave President Roosevelt notice that it will launch a fresh drive for higher prices if he fails to hold down wages.

Brown, a former senator, said that he opposed the Pace bill because of the danger of inflation.

"A 10 per cent rise in the cost of living at this time, it has been said, is worth 10 divisions to the Axis," said Brown. "I am convinced that this is true.

Up and Down THE STREET

The wind was blowing in the wrong direction yesterday in this column's explanation of why smoke from a moving train traveled straight up instead of traveling backward over the train. The unusual sight occasioned much comment earlier in the week of travelers on State Route 39 which runs near the Pennsylvania railroad line between Mansfield and Lucas. The wind's velocity must have equalled the train's speed, as both traveled in the same direction. Yesterday this column said the wind and train were traveling in opposite directions.

Apparently some former Mansfield man, now in U. S. air service, must have wanted a good view of the old home town from the air. At least that was the best explanation advanced for the visit yesterday of a B-24 Liberator bomber that flew over the city and circled the municipal airport but did not land.

The Mansfield Visiting Nurses' association and health department had a present today for a Mansfield baby, and nurses were looking for the baby. So far, the garments haven't been distributed, so some lucky baby is due to receive the gift package with the compliments of the Brownies who are between six and eight years old.

'CLUB' DRIVERS HELD LIABLE

High Court Says Share-Ride Car Owners Responsible For Passengers.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—An Ohio supreme court ruling today made automobile owners participating in share-the-ride agreements liable for injuries to passengers in case of accident.

Owners are liable because they accept payment from fellow workers, the tribunal held, commenting it "is just as important to the war effort to provide security for the workers as it is to conserve the tires of the vehicle in which he is transported."

The decision reversed a Cuyahoga county declaratory judgment holding share-the-ride agreements came under Ohio's automobile guest law which relieves owners of liability except in cases of "wanton misconduct" in driving.

The high court held, however, that the guest law applied only where transportation was provided without payment.

Court attaches expressed the opinion that in most instances the decision would make owners personally liable because insurance contracts usually do not protect drivers operating cars for hire.

The court asserted the law could not be given one construction "in peace time and another in war time, unless appropriate provision for it is in the statute itself." It commented, however, that the legislature could make share-the-ride agreements subject to the guest statute.

The decision was made in a test case filed by Joseph Miller of Cleveland.

From far away Africa comes a bit of V ...— Mail from Tommy Moxley, the all-around Westinghouse athlete (Pvt. Robert Moxley to you, sir), that makes me feel kinda good, so if you don't mind reading my mail again——.

Dear Rex: Don't suppose you ever thought your sport-columns would ever reach this part of the world, but they have, and I enjoyed them very much. Naturally I would, though, as a couple of them were about myself. Thanks very much for honoring me in your column.

I also enjoyed the "Remember Pearl Harbor" edition of the News-Journal that they sent to all of the Mansfield boys in the service and feel sure that it was welcomed by all of them.

Suppose our Cleveland Indians have started their spring training at Purdue university by this time, and are all set to win the pennant again as usual.

Was certainly glad to hear that Paul Brown had such a good year at Ohio State. That gives the ex-Massillon boys like Harold Aston something to talk about since that Massillon-Canton McKinley game.

Don't imagine you will be too busy covering the sporting events around Mansfield this summer, so after the bowling banquets are all over you will probably get your share of golf played out at Possum and Coolridge.

* * *

Well, Rex, I can't think of anything else to write about, that is that the censor allows us to write, so I had better close for now.

Say "Hello" for me to any of my old buddies that you happen to run across.

Best wishes,
Tommy Moxley.

"Thanks," he says, "for honoring me in your column."

When all the thanks are due the other way round to Tom and guys like him who are keeping the Nazis busy over there so my kids and kids like them can sleep in peace over here.

Any honor we can give you in this corner, Tom, is a very small part of what you have coming.

Speaking of kids and peace and stuff, I'm sorry to report a three-day softball battle out at Western school in which the sixth grade girls defeated the fourth grade boys 20-15. Sorry because my son Dave was on the losing team.

He readily admits he was at bat three times and struck out three times. "Those big sixth grade guls throw too fast for me," says he.

The word is going round that Jom Oswalt pitcher for the past several seasons for the Lucas Mer- chants baseball team, and left fielder last summer for the Ohio Public Service softball club is getting a "look" this spring with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Oswalt was captain of the 1938-39 Lucas county championship high school basketball team still regarded by many fans as one of the best cage quintets ever put togetner in Richland county Class B circles, in spite of its defeat in the Cary tournament.

SEES TAMPERING IN LOMBARDI HOLDOUT

WALLINGFORD, Conn —(AP)— President Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves said today that apparently a better offer from another club had sent catcher Ernie Lombardi into the ranks of the holdouts.

Quinn exhibited a letter refuting the story that Lombardi was dissatisfied from the beginning with salary terms. In the letter the veteran catcher on March 12 was quoted as saying that his father was dying and that he had decided to remain in defense work for the duration.

Pro Grid Draft Set For Today

Cleveland Takes Part Although Suspended.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(AP)—A huge player lottery which has as its grand prize a possible cut of the championship melon, is scheduled today when the national football league holds its annual "draft" meeting.

* * *

On giant blackboards in a smoke-filled hotel conference room were posted the names of approximately 1,000 college gridders and by nightfall 200 of them will be selected by pro grid teams. The number of drafted players who report next fall to their respective clubs may go a long way toward deciding the combination which will capture the 1943 title.

Some club owners claim the draft is a mere formality the league is going through to establish future negotiating rights, but others maintained the size of the posted list indicated that availability might greatly influence the choice of some outfits which already have had their rosters riddled by military service calls.

In a normal year the number of draft prospects offered the club owners and coaches is only 400. However, the urgency of the times and the need for athletic manpower to keep the pro circuit operating has influenced the officials to expand the list.

Although he's already in the marines, coaches were virtually unanimous in the belief that Frankie Sinkwich, the top star of Georgia's Rose Bowl eleven, would be the No. 1 player on the draft list.

It was believed most clubs would take several big names for "window-dressing" purposes and then settle down to drawing performers who might be on hand for use next fall.

Detroit, which lost 11 straight games last season to finish in the league cellar, gets first choice in the draft. The remaining order of selection is Philadelphia, the Chicago Cardinals, Brooklyn, Cleveland, New York, Pittsburgh, Green Bay, Chicago Bears and Washington.

Although Cleveland will not operate next season it will be permitted to participate in the draft. The players the Rams select, plus the grinders now on its active and reserve lists, then will be distributed among the other nine league members.

Prior to the draft the pro owners took steps to solve two of their most burdensome war-time problems, those of manpower and transportation.

To alleviate the stringent manpower problem it was voted to reduce the player limit 33 to 25. The free substitution rule, which has been in effect in the college code for the past two seasons, also was adopted.

* * *

In an effort to cut travel a lead was taken from big league baseball's book and the grid clubs voted for "at home" training camps.

Jack-Montgomery Title Bout Set

NEW YORK —(AP)— Beau Jack hurricane-hitting little boxer from Augusta, Ga., will make the first defense of his lightweight championship against Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia at Madison Square Garden May 21.

FIVE CHAMPS DUE FOR GAME ACTION

CAIRO, Ill.—(AP)—Five of the stars who brought the world championship to the Red Birds last year will be in the starting lineup when the St. Louis Cardinals open a seven-game series with the Browns Sunday.

Manager Billy Southworth said he could not pick his pitcher until the day of the game but revealed a lineup of Walker Cooper, catcher; Johnny Hopp, first base; Lou Klein, second; Whitey Kurowski, third and Marty Marion at short. Stan Musial, only 1942 holdover in the outfield, will be in left field, Harry Walker at center and Debs Garms at right.

Headlining the East aggregation is Howard, state champion pole vaulter and also a star in the high jump and hurdles, and King, a star sprinter. Both are colored boys.

Mehock announced today that Lorain has agreed to come here for a meet on May 17.

WAKEFIELD, HIGGINS GIVEN VACATION

EVANSVILLE, Ind. —(UP)— All of the Detroit Tigers regulars but Dick Wakefield and Pinky Higgins will remain here for Sunday's exhibition game with Pittsburgh, Manager Steve O'Neill said today.

O'Neill designated a squad of 12 other Tigers, including four pitchers, to fill engagements with the Pirates at Muncie, Ind., Saturday and with Indianapolis at Terre Haute, Ind., Sunday.

VICTORIOUS REDLEGS TAKE ON MORE MAGIC

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds get in more muscle magicking and hitting and fielding practice today in preparation for another game with the Chicago Cubs tomorrow.

The Reds took the Indianapolis Indians yesterday, 8 to 6, despite some soft pitching by Johnny Vander Meer and Joe Beggs. Johnny had good control but little on the ball and the Indians knocked out five triples. Max Marshall hit a homer for the Reds and Ray Mueller, new catcher from the Pacific coast, got two triples.

Shaffer Paces Victory Loop

Scheifley Rolls High Game of 237 Pins.

Shaffer's 603 led the Victory league keglers last night at Colony alleys by a one pin margin over McCreedy.

Schiefley chalked up high game of 237, then rolled 120.

Count's Odds Hit Bottom

Reach 7-5 Before His First Start of Season.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Kentucky Derby winter book price on Count Fleet—lowest in history to begin with—just about dropped completely out of sight today.

The way the Count has been "breaking stopwatches" in his sizzling workouts over Belmont's exercise track these spring mornings, and the fact his leading rival, Devil's Thumb, has been sidelined for two months, has convinced Broadway's better bookmakers that the tall skinny son of Reigh Count is the year's "hot one" among the three-year-olds. So they've sliced his future derby price down to 7 to 5.

Col. Ed Bradley once said that it's 3 to 1 in the futures against any horse even getting to the post on Derby day. And the Count hasn't been even to the races yet as a three-year-old. Although he's heading for the Wood memorial at Jamaica April 17.

The Count is a "freak" horse, the railbirds tell you. They say there are a lot of things wrong with the way he runs—except that once the boy gives him the green light he can really pick 'em up and lay 'em down.

He's tall and gangling and his quarters are so high he looks almost swaybacked from some angles. And he runs with his head held high, which, the "wise guys" tell you, is no way for a gee-gee to travel if he's going to go a mile and a quarter. And others believe he may be training too fast—as witness his 1:38 3-5-mile as early in the season as last week.

But add it all up, and you have to put "the skipper" at the head of the class for any of the big three-year-old stakes you mention.

Hank Clouts WinningHomer

Former Mansfielder Stars In Tribe Victory.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. —(AP)— Their hopes for a touch of hitting power revived by Rookie Hank Edwards' bat, the Cleveland Indians today meet the Indianapolis American association club in the first of a two-game series. Vern Kennedy, Jim Bagby and Joe Heving were nominated for the hurling chores.

The Tribe's doubts about available batting power were partly dispelled after Edwards slammed a home run over the right field fence in the ninth inning yesterday to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4 to 3.

The rookie's homer climaxed an uphill struggle in which the Clevelanders spotted the Pirates a three-run lead.

Pitchers Mike Naymick and Pete Center, two other rookies, worked three innings apiece and shared honors with Edwards, limiting the Bues to one hit in six frames. Jack Salveson pitched the middle three innings, but gave the National leaguers five hits, including two triples and two doubles, which produced Pittsburg's two unearned runs.

The Tribe's nine hits, against six for the Pirates, included Oris Hockett's triple, a double by Otto Denning and Edwards' homer. Denning's extra base hit drove in two runs, making a total of five the emergency first-sacker accounted for in the Pittsburgh series.

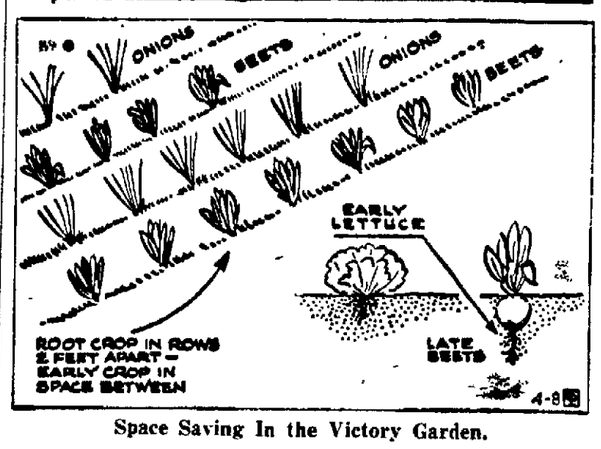
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Space Saving In the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

VICTORY gardeners anxious to make use of a limited space should plan companion cropping and succession cropping for a maximum harvest of vegetables

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden Graph, companion cropping is a method of making use of the same soil area for a long and short season crop simultaneously. Root crops, such as turnips, parsnips, beets and carrots, which require a long growing period are planted alternately with early maturing vegetables, such as green onions, lettuce and spinach. Plant the root crops in rows two feet apart and the rows of early vegetables in between so that all the rows will be one foot apart. The early group of vegetables will mature before the late crop group is large enough to need all of the row space.

Ginsburg Gets More Praise Than Eight War Heroes

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Thomas (R-N. J.) told the house today President Roosevelt used 400 words in commending the services of David Ginsburg, OPA general counsel, as compared with a total of 354 words in official commendations of eight war heroes.

Offering the figures as "typical" of the actions of New Deal administrators, whom he termed "the greatest gang of morale busters," Thomas said the chief executive used 81 words in paying tribute to the five Sullivan boys lost in action, 98 in a citation for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 66 in commending flier Jimmy Doolittle and 109 in praising Capt. Colin Kelly.

Ginsberg recently was criticized on the house floor after he was reported by Rep. Flannagan (D-Va.) to be in line for a commission as an army colonel and an assignment in London. Ginsburg subsequently applied to his local draft board for immediate induction. Still later Mr. Roosevelt wrote OPA Administrator Prentiss Brown, lauding Ginsburg's work.

NEW NORWEGIAN FAMILY STORY ON BOOK LIST

Kathryn Forbes' 'Mama's Bank Account' Among Latest Volumes at Library.

Some time ago there appeared in the "Reader's Digest" a story by Kathryn Forbes entitled "Mama's Bank Account," and its appeal was so immediate that Miss Forbes has written a complete book "MAMA'S BANK ACCOUNT" which deals with the same Norwegian family living in San Francisco. This book is among the new books which will be placed on the shelves of the Mansfield Public Library Saturday.

Others Include:

NUMBER ONE by John Dos Passos has for its setting Washington, and the time is today. Tyler Spotswood is the key character in this story of American politics, and the brains behind "Number One," otherwise known as Chuck Crawford, politician. The last Dos Passos novel, "Adventures of a Young Man," began the story of this contemporary family, the Spotswoods. Glenn Spotswood ended the bewilderment of the thirties on a Spanish battlefield. In "Number One," Tyler, his older brother, learns the importance of giving one's self to our common civilization, and of first having a self to give.

THE HUMAN COMEDY by William Saroyan is the story of an American family in wartime and, in particular, of Homer Macauley, the fastest messenger boy in San Joaquin valley. Important characters are Homer's little brother, Ulysses, old-time telegraph operator, Willie Grogan, and Homer's oldest brother, Marcus, now in the army. With all the qualities of warmth, cheer and humanity which have endeared Saroyan to his reading public, it abounds in unforgettable scenes.

Other fiction: THE BRIDE SAW RED—Carson: NOT HERS ALONE—Allen: SILVERTIP'S ROUNDUP—Brand.

BETWEEN THE THUNDER AND THE SUN by Vincent Sheean is a direct sequel to "Personal History" and "Not Peace But a Sword." It is the story of the whole world as he has seen and lived it since the fateful winter of 1939—from Salzburg to Chungking to New York. To Sheean, this war is not a series of events starting in 1939 and apart from all other times, but the inevitable march of history, in which he has lived as a foreign correspondent at the scene of action.

THEY CALL IT PACIFIC by Clark Lee is an eye-witness account of our war against Japan from Bataan to the Solomons. Lee watched the querilla troops harry the invaders in northern Luzon; he lived with the soldiers on Corregidor; he came into Honolulu a few hours before the first shots of the Battle of Midway; at the Solomons he was on a torpedoed carrier. In addition to his intimate knowledge of our own troops, he traveled thousands of miles with the Japanese army in various China campaigns, and saw them operate from behind their own lines.

APPEASEMENT'S CHILD: THE FRANCO REGIME IN SPAIN by Thomas J. Hamilton is a careful, authentic study of conditions and politics in Spain since the end of the Civil war—by the former Madrid correspondent of the New York Times and a roving South American correspondent for the same paper. Economic problems, political struggles, the role of the church, the relation of Spain to the Axis and to Latin America, governmental functioning, the attitude of the people—all these aspects of life in Spain are discussed thoroughly and frankly.

Not since Booker T. Washington has there been an American negro to attain the stature of George Washington Carver. In his biography by Rackham Holt, GEORGE WASHINGTON CARVER, the author tells how his genius, patient and pure, ranked him with the great men of the century; his laboratory experiments won him world-wide fame; and his profound knowledge of botany, agriculture, and soil economy enabled him to help his people in the south to better ways of living. He never stopped studying, never ceased learning and almost to the day of his death, after more than 80 years of fruitful life, he was still excitedly adventuring up new and untried paths of science.

Other non-fiction: H. M CORVETTE- Monsarrat; FUTURE OF INDUSTRIAL MAN - Drucker; READING IN HIGH GEAR—Cage; GIVE ME LIBERTY—Harper; NEEDLE POINT AS A HOBBY—NEEDLE POINT AS A HOBBY—Lent; INTRODUCTION TO PHYSICAL OPTICS—Robertson; THE FARMER CITIZEN AT WAR—Tolley; MR. SMITH MEET MR. COHEN—Wise & Levinger; THE ROAD TO FULFILLMENT—Rush; JESUS' OWN WORDS.

THEATERS

Radio Rogues.

The Radio Rogues, comedians and impersonators, who recently concluded a five-year run in the musical comedy, "Hellzapoppin," to appear in Columbia's musical, "Reveille With Beverly," now at the Ohio, have been headlining in big time vaudeville stage musicals and films for a decade and a half. The three mimics got their first start as entertainers when a small Brooklyn radio station, in need of entertainers, allowed the three youths to make their debut on one of its sustaining programs. They have since been heard on many important programs and have made a number of films, including "Thanks a Million," "Every Night At Eight" and "Going Hollywood."

Chinese Actor Luke.

Keye Luke, Chinese actor, and one of Hollywood's best illustrators, has received many requests for strange drawings in his career, but this request was the topper! He was asked to draw an endaural fenestration! "A what?" wailed the properly bewildered Luke. Willis Goldbeck, directing Keye in "Dr. Gilespie's New Assistant," explained that the long-named drawing was a diagram of an ear operation which Keye is supposed to perform in the film. The picture, with Lionel Barrymore in the title role, is now playing at the Madison. Co-attraction is "Lady Bodyguard."

Duplicates Old Home.

Philip Dorn has duplicated, in Hollywood, the old home occupied by his grandfather in Holland, including period furniture and decorations which he vividly remembers. A massive rocking chair, some paintings and a number of curious pipes, which the actor brought to American before the Nazi invasion of Holland, his home land, are cherished pieces in the house. Dorn is starred with Joan Crawford and John Wayne in "Reunion In France," now playing at the Ritz. Co-feature is "Dr. Renault's Secret."

YOU CAN GET PLENTY OF CANS

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Victory gardeners who plan to can their surplus fruits and vegetables this year are assured by the War Production board that plenty of devices to seal glass jars will be available, although none of the old style zinc tops will be manufactured this season.

One new, three-piece jar lid will be on the market, the Ohio State university extension service reports—a heat-resistant glass lid, a rubber ring, and a metal screw band. The lid can be used year after year by replacing the rubber ring.

UNEVEN TRENDS PERSISTING ON STOCK MARKET

Bank Clearings In 23 Cities Go 50 Per Cent Above Mark In 1942.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly uneven trends persisted in today's early stock market transactions.

Up a shade at a fairly active opening were Chrysler, Packard and American Smelting. Small declines were registered for General Electric, General Motors, Standard Oil (NJ), Westinghouse and Texas Co.

Some market encouragement was derived from the Dun & Bradstreet compilation indicating bank clearings in 23 cities during the week ended Wednesday were about 50 per cent above those of the comparable 1942 period. Outstanding year-to-year increases were recorded at New York, New Orleans, Omaha, Minneapolis, Portland, Ore., Baltimore, Seattle and Denver.

Out of the northern wage conference, which heretofore had been assumed to be making more progress than the southern meeting, came the operators' statement that a pact could not be consummated by further parleys and a proposal the present contract be observed for the war's duration, subject to any government required changes.

The extension agreement reached before the contract expired March 31 averted the threat of a work stoppage.

Lewis, UMW head, described the northerner's proposal as "an arrogant and contemptuous gesture on the part of these opulent coal operators" and "an affront" to the intelligence of UMW negotiators.

made when two armored cars met the Americans about 40 miles west of Gabes.

Bombs were bursting near by in a thunderous roar as American Mitchells and British Spitfires hammered terrific blows at Field Marshal Erwin Rommels troops beginning withdrawal to the northeast under a smokescreen cover.

The meeting of the battle-grimed doughboys and the British Tommies came after Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's American forces over-ran the last remnants of enemy resistance and swept the Axis forces from the battle field in furious fighting.

The Americans cleared the area by driving forward in the face of murderous enfilading fire from German machine-gun nests dug into hill positions and concluded the junction with the British two miles north of the bloody Gafsa-Gabes road where Rommel's forces fought for two weeks to keep the two armies from joining.

The cheers of the Americans and British as they met rang sharp and clear in the desert air. As the doughboys wiped the muddy sweat from the brows and the British drew up to their ranks the skies resounded to the roar of scores of bombers and fighters coming in wave upon wave to lash at Rommel's tanks and trucks retreating through the hills beyond.

RECORD STATE BUDGET BILL BEFORE SENATE

Catlett Defends $366,460,921 Measure as Dems Attack Bricker 'Extravagance.'

Democratic predecessor (Martin L. Davey).

"While Bricker is governor, the "E" award—for economy—will never fly over the statehouse," he said.

Catlett then declared that the minority party, through its amendments, had placed itself on record as favoring a 10 per cent cut in state employes' paychecks; as advocating a cut in old age pensions, and as frowning on a much-needed post-war building program.

Catlett said, according to the United Press, that "the people of Ohio are interested whether appropriations are spent wisely. Under Governor Bricker the people have confidence in their state government."

Huml replied that Bricker, while "decrying the extravagance of his Democratic precedessor, should keep his promises of economy" rather than become "the most extravagant governor in the 48 states."

Democratic representatives introduced eight amendments, all defeated, including proposals to cut salary and wage appropriations 10 per cent; strike out provisions for creation of a welfare building reserve; reduce old age pension appropriations from $45,000,000 a year to $40,000,000, cut poor relief appropriations from $5,000,000 to $3,500,000 a year; and increase the subsidy for local civilian defense from $500,000 to $750,000 a year.

Catlett again defended the measure in the Republican caucus, which preceded the vote. Conferring for two hours the Republicans apparently had agreed completely on the bill before it was brought to the floor.

Only one majority member, Rep. William R. Van Aken, Cuyahoga, stepped out of line to introduce an amendment, according to International News Service.

He introduced an amendment to reinstate the $1,000,000 in local civilian defense funds which was cut from the bill by the house finance committee.

Catlett answered Van Aken by citing figures to show that many communities were seeking as much money as had been previously allocated, and which had been spent for permanent equipment such as sirens, trucks, blackout screens, helmets, armbands and other items that would not need to be replaced each year. He also charged that in Cleveland alone, $234,000 had been spent for salaries. Van Aken's amendment was then shouted down.

In the caucus which preceded the house session, GOP members agreed not to sign a petition which would have relieved the house finance committee of the bill to repeal the sales tax on prescription medicine and meals sold in restaurants and hotels. They had heard that the Democratic minority in the house was prepared to circulate such a petition.

Although it was reported that some Republican members were in favor of repealing the tax, as proposed by Gov. John W. Bricker, the majority favored refusal to sign.

The proposed repeal would have saved Ohio taxpayers approximately $1,000,000 a year. Speaker William M. McCulloch said that the opinion of the caucus was that "the best post-war planning is to have a very substantial surplus in the treasury."

Another argument against the repeal was that because of the uncertainties of the yield of many taxes due to rationing and other war-time curtailments "this is no time" to reduce or repeal any of the levies.

Already passed by the senate, the tax-repealer bill has been bottled in committee for several weeks.

William Reidens (R-Hamilton) majority floor leader, then took the floor to rap the minority for their attacks on the bill.

It's true we'll have a surplus, he concluded. "But a sound business administration is the widest course to pursue today.

"When the war ends the nation and the state of Ohio will face the greatest problems the world has ever seen. I'm willing to stake my career on an administration of economy and straightness, so that we may be prepared to face the days ahead.

The problem of estimating revenues a year ahead is so unpredictable that I would rather be ultra-conservative and wind up with a surplus than have the revenues collapse completely. That's sound budgeting and sound governmental procedure."

During debate on the floor, Howard Metzenbaum (D-Cuyahoga) proposed that the liquor department salary allotment be cut by $2,000,000, since there was no liquor to sell.

"With the supply of liquor decreasing, the department put on 51 more employes as of March 1 of this year, as against March 1 of 1942," he declared. "It's not necessary to have an average of more than four employes in each of the state's 218 stores when an average of two would suffice.

"These unnecessary employes could be released to war industries—but then they would not be around to campaign for Bricker if he runs for president, or if he seeks a fourth term as governor."

Rep. Robert L. Moulton (D-Crawford) introduced an amendment to cut an additional $2,000,000 from the poor relief fund, stating it was unneeded, but his amendment, like Mitzenbaum's, was defeated without debate.

Other defeated amendments were by John F. Caldwell (D-Mahoning) to cut $90,000 from the highway department's salary fund for 1945, and by A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes) to cut the emergency board appropriation by an additional $100,000.

Rep. Paul Ballard (R-Jackson) sponsor of the bill and chairman of the house finance committee, outlined the bill and pointed out that while it was about $13,500,000 more than appropriated two years ago it was "designed to meet abnormal, wartime conditions."

He added that his committee had whittled more than three and a quarter million dollars from the bill as originally drawn, including a cut in local civilian defense from $2,000,000; the emergency board from $2,300,000 to $1,000,000, and the fund for poor relief by $1,000,000.

"Despite the over-all increase, there has been a cut in ordinary expenses of more than $14,000,000 over appropriations of two years ago," Ballard said. "We have cut $7,500,000 from poor relief funds and $6,000,000 from the school debt payments.

"However, we have increased old age pension payments by $9,880,000, provided $3,400,000 more for the operation of our welfare insututions, and have set up several entirely new funds, such as that for civilian defense. We are adding $13,770,000 to the post-war building fund.

"We are providing $5,635,000 for 10 per cent wage increases to state workers. The wage increases have been made retro-active, and will extend from Jan. 1 of this year to Dec. 31, 1945. However, they are war-time raises and are not to be considered permanent."

Ballard said that the post-war building fund, which now will total more than $19,000,000, will be invested in short term war bonds.

Minority Leader John Carney (D-Cuyahoga) attacked the bills with the declaration that "every estimate submitted to the legislature the last three sessions has been phony."

"We have always been misled," he added. "The Republican administration has attempted to fool us; has given us misleading figures."

RECEIPTS $7,821

Parking Meter Payments Are Down Compared To '42.

Mansfield's parking meters produced $7,821 through March 25 this year, approximately 17 per cent less than in the corresponding period last year when revenue totaled $9,496.

Appropriations of $33,900 made from the prospective 1943 revenue will not suffer unless the decline in collections hits a more rapid pace, said City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, since the city had expected a 10 per cent drop this year.

The auditor is optimistic about the meter revenue outlook believing that the large number of auto stickers sold so far indicates motorists will continue to drive their cars, at least in the Mansfield area.

Warden Frank D. Henderson said the fire occurred on the third floor of the old hospital building now being remodeled. Damage amounted to only $2, he added.

fight the common enemy united and together," he added.

He said an agreement on policy toward Spain, Portugal, Turkey and other European neutrals was reached and plans had been made for an improved exchange of information on enemy and enemy-occupied territories.

He said his discussions in Washington fell mainly under three headings: first, "operational matters — immediate questions concerned with the conduct of the war;" second, "political cooperation between us in connection with actual military operations that have taken place or will take place;" and, third, questions arising out of the war.

Eden concluded with the statement that his trip had been fundamentally the most worthwhile of his career.

"My closing impression of America," he said, "was one of a young and vigorous people, wholehearted in the struggle and determined to work together with the other United Nations in war and in peace.

"I have come back with, I say frankly, a different view of the sentiments of the United States toward both this struggle and the post-war period. I believe the opportunities that are opened to us, great though the difficulties are, are wider in scope than I thought possible."

After that Western thriller at the movies, Ben [illegible] says: "You know, the West wasn't all like that. While the gun-play was goin' on—respectable folks were weeding out undesirable elements . . . red-eye saloons and gambling joints."

And Ben's right. There's a spirit in America that's always working for a better community. Take that "clean up or close-up" program of the brewing industry, for instance. Its whole purpose is to see that beer is sold only in clean, respectable places.

Everybody benefits from co-operation like that—even folks who want Prohibition back. Because those beer folks are working for the same thing—a decent, law-abiding community.

From where I sit—the way isn't to pass more laws, but to enforce the ones we've got—and rely on America's spirit of tolerance and cooperation.

ALLIES WITHIN 27 MILES OF PORT OF TUNIS

Yanks, British Unite, Pursue Rommel Northward, Planes Rip Enemy Columns.

tageous positions on the highlands, was a difficult one and heavy casualties were suffered.

Land mines were used in such quantity by the enemy that they were not merely impediments, but full-fledged weapons with which to hold back the thrusts of Patton's men.

French troops added their arms to the assault on Rommel, again in retreat. The communique announced the French south of the American column east of Gafsa had moved forward on the southern flank of the Americans, capturing a number of prisoners and 20 guns.

The French attack was described as "successful advance." Thus almost the entire Allied military machine in Tunisia was on the move.

The Allied aerial assault was continued with all its smashing power and the communique reported that in southern Tunisia light bombers and fighter-bombers carried out "heavy and continuous attacks" on the enemy.

The Allied planes were busy too on the northern front, attacking enemy transport and starting fires among parked vehicles. Nine Junkers-87's were destroyed by Allied planes.

The Sfax-Sousse road along which Rommel must make his retreat was attacked throughout Tuesday night and the same night big bombers attacked the railway yards at Tunis, starting fires, it was announced. One Allied plane was reported missing from all these operations.

The Eighth army, after cracking the Wadi El Akarit defenses of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel in two hours, was driving northward along the coast and adding new prisoners to the total of 6,000 announced by Prime Minister Churchill yesterday.

A brief official announcement told of the historic meeting of the American and British forces on the rocky ridge of Djebel Chemsii on the road from El Guetar to the coast.

"The Eighth army today made contact with the Second United States corps from Gafsa," it said. "The advance continues and air forces from east and west continue to enjoy common targets."

The "common targets" were the columns of Axis tanks, guns, motorized infantry and other equipment—moving backward again in a withdrawal which started at El Alamein, Egypt, last fall and became the longest retreat of modern warfare. Allied airmen shuttled back and forth over the columns, subjecting them to a terrible and unrelieved punishment.

The continuing advance of the Eighth army after its swift breakthrough 20 miles north of Gabes Tuesday, indicated considerable progress had been made, but the extent of the advance was not announced in last night's special communique.

It was disclosed that for two weeks, American infantrymen, plugging doggedly ahead toward the sea across terrain ideally suited for Axis defense, had kept most of Rommel's armored force occupied, lightening the burden on the Eighth army.

Only a few hours before the two Allied armies met on Djebel Chemsi, elite German troops were fighting fiercely there to hold the Axis flank against the Americans. These enemy forces have withdrawn to the northeast for the long, bitter trip up the coast.

It is not known whether any large Axis forces were trapped on the south side of the Gafsa-Gabes road when the Allied armies met, but, if so, they had scant hope of survival.

When the Akarit defenses cracked, the Axis forces concentrated in the El Guetar area were in danger of being left behind and trapped by the Eighth army advance and they began moving northward under a smoke screen.

Farther north, the American forces in the Maknassy sector were reported in dispatches from the front to have cleaned out a number of Axis positions in preparation for the driving of a new wedge into the Axis armies. The American troops here are only 28 miles from the coastal road.

(The Vichy radio reported Lieut. Gen. K. A. N. Anderson's British First army had launched an attack believed to be on a large scale in the Medjez El Bab area, about 36 miles southwest of Tunis.)

With still another British-French force creeping up toward Bizerte in the far north, Rommel's position in Africa appeared to be growing more critical hourly.

His withdrawal was certain to cost him heavily in equipment, with hundreds of Allied planes blasting at his columns in the narrow coastal area and his Tunisia-based aircraft as well as his air fields in Sicily.

'Surprise' Surprises Fighting French

LONDON — (AP) — Fighting French quarters apparently were puzzled today by dispatches from Algiers quoting Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as expressing "surprise" over a French National committee statement he had asked Gen. Charles DeGaulle to postpone his visit to North Africa.

Declaring he saw no occasion for Gen. Eisenhower's surprise, a Fighting French spokesman said the national committee merely had issued its statement in explanation of DeGaulle's failure to depart as expected for conference with Gen. Henri Giraud on the unification of French forces fighting the Axis.

"DeGaulle had been expecting to go shortly after the first of the year," the spokesman said, "and the reason for the delay in opening negotiations with Giraud otherwise could not be understood."

Fighting French sources, however, said the national committee was planning no further statement at the moment.

Only yesterday, Prime Minister Churchill issued a statement saying he was in agreement with Eisenhower "in deprecating the visit by DeGaulle during the battle crisis in Tunisia which requires the undivided attention of the Allied command."

Report Increased Action In Russia

MOSCOW — (AP) — While no big changes took place overnight on the Russian-German front, still oozing with the spring thaw, increased action was reported today in several sectors.

The Red army stormed German positions south of Izyum and captured advantageous lines in the face of sharp Nazi fire after several days of numerous German attacks.

In the Sevsk sector northwest of Kursk the Germans again began counter-attacks but they availed nothing. The Russians previously halted large-scale enemy operations there.

The Volkhov front saw battling again, with the Germans once more trying to take a Soviet position, and again failing.

U. S. Bombers Keep Up Supply Base Raids

CAIRO — (U.P.) — U. S. bombers, continuing raids on Axis Tunisian supply bases, raided the harbor of Palermo, Sicily, yesterday, following up Tuesday's heavy British attacks on Naples and Messina, it was announced today.

A communique of the Ninth U. S. air force said Liberators scored hits on the Palermo quays and in the vicinity of a seaplane base. All planes returned safely.

Italian Made Chief On African Front

NEW YORK — (AP) — A London broadcast recorded today by CBS said today Gen. Giovanni Messe, an Itelian, was the new commander-in-chief in Tunisia.

"A Berlin military spokesman says that Rommel and Von Arnim are now both under Gen. Messe's command," it quoted the broadcast as saying.

"Gen. Messe was in command of the first Italian expeditionary force sent to the Russian front."

OPA BATTLES 'GHOST SALES'

Officials Act Against Illegal Cleveland Transactions.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Regional OPA officials sought legal means today to stop "ghost sales" on the Cleveland produce market—a new way to circumvent price ceiling regulations.

The practice, they said, involves billing a retail grocer for an additional item when he goes to a commission merchant to buy his daily supply of green vegetables.

The grocer does not receive the additional item but must pay for it in order to purchase the items he does need for his customers.

County, District Black-Out Test Starts at 9:25 Tonight

throughout the city and volunteer firemen and police will be ready for an emergency.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said police will patrol the city during the black-out period and officers will have orders to arrest violators of the black-out rules.

Stop signs have already been erected at a number of intersections in the outlying districts of the city so that traffic lights may be turned off before the black-out starts, Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals said.

He urged motorists to stay off the streets during the black-out period if possible and if they must travel, to move with caution with lights dimmed. Motorists were advised to leave their cars when they park them during the black-out but to make certain that all lights are turned out when the car is parked.

Air raid shelters will be located at these places in the downtown area:

Kobacker's store, Weinberger's drug store, Park theater, Southern hotel, Eagles lodge, Moose club, First Christian church, Ritz theater, Warner building on North Main street, Hotel Fairview, Greyhound bus station, Friendly House, Mansfield-Leland hotel, Walpark building, Richland Trust lobby, Farmers bank lobby, Madison theater, First Presbyterian church, Colony Bowling alley, and Greystone Night club.

OCD Commander Jess Schwab emphasized that home owners must be certain no lights show in their houses or on their properties, and if there is a refuge room in the home, it must be completely hidden from the outside.

Minimum use of telephones is advised during the caution and black-out periods. No one is to use flashlights or light a match in the open during the black-out period or in the house unless the shades are down.

The same precautions that have been issued for Mansfield also hold for other cities and villages and rural communities in the black-out area.

Two more Ohio counties were added today to the districts to be blacked out. They are Jefferson and Butler. Others which will participate are Ashland, Auglaize, Carroll, Fulton, Hancock, Hardin, Harrison, Holmes, Mercer, Paulding, Putnam, Stark, Tuscarawas, Van Wert, Wayne, Wyandot and Williams.

along the Mayu river and said operations were progressing for destruction of the rest. The British, however, declared the Japanese offensive was futile.

In the Southwest Pacific, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters announced Allied airmen hit 10 Japanese bases in the islands above Australia including Cape Gloucester, New Britain; Finschhafen, Lae and Salamaua, New Guinea—and a lone American Flying Fortress strafed a three-ship Japanese convoy off Kavieng, New Ireland.

SORRY HE LIVES

Youth Who Killed Girl, 4, Makes Suicide 'Gesture.'

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Earl Perry, 17, confessed slayer of curly-haired Theresa Williams, four-year-old neighbor's child, sat in his cell today and pointed a finger at his head in simulation of a gun and expressed the wish he had "ended it all this way."

It was the only sign of remorse exhibited by Perry, a three-time parolee, in his lengthy and macabre recitation to police as to how he lured the blond youngster to the cellar of his home and choked her to death early yesterday.

His voice unshaken throughout a recorded two-hour confession, Perry admitted strangling and then criminally assaulting "Cici," as Theresa was known in the neighborhood, after persuading the child to accompany him to his basement.

RESTAURATEURS WANT MORE FOOD

Submit Recommendation to OPA At Columbus Meeting.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Ohio restaurant owners, meeting in emergency sessions with restaurateurs from six other mid-western states, planned today to ask the Office of Price Administration to increase rationed food allowances "so they can continue operating."

Robert R. Williams, executive secretary of the Ohio State Restaurant association, said a recommendation seeking a let-up in wartime food limitations would be submitted to OPA representatives attending today's session of the "emergency conference."

Restaurants now get about 50 per cent of the processed foods and meats they did last December, while business continues to increase and labor becomes scarcer, Williams asserted.

Left-handed persons are estimated to constitute from five to eight per cent of the total population of the U. S.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 8, 1943.

Remember the blackout tonight—9:25 to 9:55.

Fewer overflowing garbage cans nowadays, the collectors are beginning to notice.

Liquor rationing may cause "headaches" for officials—but a pint a month will relieve many consumers of that ailment.

Inexcusable State Tax Grab

REFUSAL by the state legislature to remove the retail sales tax on food served in hotels and restaurants is not only a slap at Governor Bricker, who recommended this action, but also evidences lack of appreciation that people must now economize in every possible way to meet the extraordinary costs of war.

This action is made even more obnoxious in its close association with legislative approval of the biggest budget bill in the state's history, which has the obvious purpose of adding to the state treasury's already excessive surplus.

The unneeded money derived from sales tax on food served in restaurants approximates $14,000 a day or around $5,000,000 a year, drained from patrons in pennies but making an appreciable total for each in a year.

One explanation is that the move was designed to favor farmers, few of whom, it is said, eat at restaurants—but observation indicates that restaurant patrons from the country are just as resentful of the sales tax on their meals as any other customers.

Another explanation is that legislators feared the embarrassment of proposals to remove the sales tax from other commodities, such as proprietary medicines in addition to prescription medicines, and the like.

NO SUCH EXPLANATION IS SATISFACTORY—the real reason is clear. Legislators who oppose reducing taxes, when reduction is practicable, and who vote to increase expenditures, when increases are unnecessary, are determined to grab every possible cent from taxpayers—AND THEY ARE DOING IT!

Young Men Who Stay On the Farm

THE PROBLEM of securing farm workers, in this war time, is serious. The farms have to be operated, and they can be best handled by young men of military age. But farm boys of this war generation, like their ancestors, are patriotic and sensitive, and far too many people in other lines of work misunderstand them and hurt their feelings.

So there is much heart-burning, and thousands of young men who should remain on the farm, raising necessary crops for the nation, want to enlist in the armed forces to save their self-respect. It is much the same, too, in various industrial occupations where special skills are needed and men are most useful where they are.

There must be practical ways to handle this human problem. It should be made clear to everybody that the men thus required on the home fronts are doing essential work and should not have to do the explaining themselves. Possibly some kind of uniform should be devised for them, so that there need be no sensitiveness about it. Or if not a uniform, at least some kind of agricultural or industrial service badge or arm-band, which the home-service men would be required to wear. And there could be army drill for them. That would give them new respect for their jobs and make their situation clear to everybody. Also, in extreme emergency, they would be available for military service.

When Speed Is Vital

SOME IDEA of the increasing extent to which aviation can be put to practical peace-time uses is gained by considering the circumstances under which an emergency flight was made yesterday from the Mansfield airport to Toledo for serum needed in treating an injured Mansfield resident confined in the Crestline hospital.

This was made possible by the quick availability of a plane and two Civil Air Patrol fliers who volunteered to make the trip to Toledo and who braved bad weather to carry through the mission of mercy.

While similar incidents are not uncommon in the history of aviation, this local example serves to emphasize the value of Civil Air Patrol development in the Mansfield area and also gives timeliness to the suggestion that Mansfield cannot safely ignore the need for airport facilities sufficient to meet future requirements of every progressive city.

Advantage In Forenoon Shopping

SUGGESTION that forenoon shopping is preferable, for those who have the time available, serves as a reminder that this is a busy season in many stores and that the matter of securing adequate trained help has become a serious problem for some merchants.

"Early in the day"—and as early as possible in the week—is a good shopping motto at any time, particularly when there are many war workers who have only Saturdays on which to do their looking around and buying.

There is also the detail of "points" to be kept in mind in connection with many transactions—which usually adds to the time required in waiting on a customer.

Shortages and restrictions make retail merchandising difficult in war-time and merchants and store employes deserve public co-operation in their efforts to give the best possible service.

Russia's Replacement Advantage

THAT RUSSIA is a big country, even bigger than the United States, is quite generally known. That she has more people is not so fully appreciated. At the start of the war she had about 190,000,000 as against the 132,000,000 for the continental United States and 80,000,000 for Germany.

This explains why the Soviet armies are able to make good their vast losses. Also why the Nazis, with fewer men to draw on, have been driven to supplement their forces in every way possible, by drafting thousands of Hungarians, Rumanians, Italians, and so on. When it is considered that every year in Russia, where the average population is younger, 1,600,000 men come of draft age, as against 400,000 for Germany, the advantage is better understood.

Word comes that a soda fountain waitress out in Illinois inherited a million dollars—but it is assumed that the others merely took war jobs.

BUT HE'S PROMISED THAT BEFORE

Wartime Lesson Is Remembered

By CHARLES P. STEWART

AMERICAN business is taking much more of an interest in this war than it ever took in any past war. We do not yet know about business reaction in other countries, but this time it is on the anxious seat in the United States, to guard against such an economic reaction as we had pretty soon after the last world conflict.

For one thing, World War II followed so closely after No. 1 that plenty of our industrial and commercial experts have not forgotten their bitter, earlier lesson.

Previous wars have been farther between. They have averaged about a generation apart, but, by the time of the next threat of war, the victims of the last hard times spell would be dead and forgotten, with their tombs bottling up what ever warnings they might have been inclined to hand down to their sons and grandsons.

I can remotely recall my own father's stories of the hard times following the War Between the States, but it was a period when I was too young to pay much attention to it. Now, I remember the last stress acutely. It must be true of plenty of folks who experienced it.

Besides, those earlier frictions were of comparatively small caliber. One of them certainly did not leave a couple of countries flattened out as the up-to-date variety of wars flattens out a whole multiplenty of countries.

Well, Yankee production and merchandising realize this aplenty and are doing their best to discount it in due season.

I'm not speaking of so called "economists," but of genuine industrialists, who take a practical view of the prospect, from the standpoint of their own pocketbooks' future. In fact, I think they may be better judges than the theorists, as to what may be coming.

* * *

ONE of the outfits that I have already had occasion to mention is the United States Chamber of Commerce, trying to line up all the Americas, on a new world unionistic basis—productive and commercial.

The American National Association of Manufacturers is down the same alley. The N. A. M. wants a code to enforce peace. It wants international co-operation—European as well as American.

The problem is: What will it be on an international basis? It won't be so hard inter-Americanly. But how about the United Nations generally? And how about Russia and the Chinese?

And finally, how will it be with the licked Axis powers?

Inter America, though, is simple. We will just have, in effect, one country. The United States, naturally, will be the main thing. And Latin America, from all indications, will acquiesce readily. Canada—of course.

What's needed is a joint agreement.

There is a lot of talk about it as between the United Nations but talk is vague on a pan-American basis. This can be framed up in jig time.

We will hear about it directly following Vice President Henry Wallace's return from below the equator. It will be mainly economic but it may have its military aspects also. Its morale will count a lot, anyway. It will count in the United States as well as abroad.

A Farmer's Diary

Little Foxes Play

ONE COLD night in January, I stopped outside our cottage door and listened. It was snowing. From the hilly slope, I had certainly heard the shrill squall of a female fox, followed almost immediately by the heavy coarser bark of her male.

Next day, in the soft snow I followed two sets of fresh tracks. I had not been mistaken. One was dainter than the other—a Reynard with his spouse had made plain and fancy steps on that trail. There was evidence of a very close relationship. They must have spent a rare wild night.

Early in April, I walked cautiously some distance from a chestnut stump, which for some time I had marked as a foxes' den. It had two openings—a front door between the bony massive roots, the other fifteen feet away within a thick clump of overhanging brambles and graceful, curving greenbrier. This vixen seemed to use the front door only—for there were the telltale tracks, and the doorway was worn smooth, with an occasional thread of red fur at the edges of the opening.

Today was warm. The afternoon sun shone directly into the opening and the south wind was soft. I had figured that, on such a day, the youngsters might be out! And there they were—six dark furry figures like small puppies, squirming up and down among the roots! They were clean and clumsy, their long noses and keen bright eyes producing what appeared to be a rare degree of animal intelligence. The mother must have left them recently for they showed no signs of hunger.

I went so close, from sheer delight at their uncertain, innocent rompings, that I was tempted to reach down and lift one playful little fellow. I turned away, instead. For I knew that if I touched one of them, to my own satisfaction, the anxious mother would know of my intrusion and move her family to some new home. They would not follow—she would carry them.

One year, through field glasses, I watched a mother fox bring a rabbit to her waiting family. She put it down and the foremost cub grabbed a hold and growled, while all the others followed his example. Then she lay flat upon a little knoll with her nose on her forepaws, and watched the tug of war with an expression of keen pleasure.

Red foxes thrive in partially settled country. The individual range, in these parts, is perhaps five miles across—and foxes respect each other's territory. Trapping season has been closed for several weeks. Reynard and his mate may move about the open fields and springtime woods in peace and safety.

THE poor showing of college freshmen in a poll on American history continues to stir up a lot of comment. All sorts of reasons for the wrong answers are given, but to me there's one simple and complete explanation: none of the boys questioned was offered $64.

You just can't expect to get any results from quizzes today unless you offer cash prizes. Those students would have done better than confuse Walt Whitman with Paul Whiteman if it had been a double-or-nothing question.

There may be another reason for the ignorance in the matter of American history. That is that there's been so much belittling of it for the past decade and so much talk about nothing in the past being of any importance.

Timely Editorial

Brazil and the War.

The announcement that Brazil will actively enter the war, sending an expeditionary force to Africa or wherever it is needed, has some long range significance.

In the friendly but real rivalry between Brazil and Argentina, for a recognized position as spokesman for the South American continent, it will give Brazil a tremendous advantage.

The Brazilians will have the nucleus of an army trained in modern, big-league warfare and equipped for it. And for some years to come, no matter what peace formula is worked out, the possession of force will be a factor in world affairs.

The rise of Brazil as a recognized power will also have some bearing on the Monroe Doctrine's future operation, for the hemisphere's security will no longer be wholly an obligation of our own country.—Cleveland News.

Hull Is Gradually Relinquishing His Post as Secretary of State

WASHINGTON—It won't be announced, and may even be denied, but for all practical purposes we now have a new secretary of state.

Cordell Hull, over 70, having given 40 valiant and fruitful years to public service, gradually is stepping aside.

Looking out of his window upon the magnolia trees, gorgeous in the spring, Hull thinks back to the days when he was a circuit judge in Tennessee, then a member of congress; to the days when he helped pioneer the first income tax law; to the fight he made against the sky-high, disastrous tarrifs of the Smoot-Hawley days; and to his briefer career in the senate.

Looking back over that vista, Hull has thought many times he might retire. But two chief things have held them on. One is his ambition to see his trade treaties continued and renegotiated (this bill is now pending in congress). The other is Mrs. Hull, who, nursing his strength carefully, is determined that he not resign.

Hull frequently finds, however, that he simply does not have the physical strength to carry on. The daily grind is too much and he absents himself a part of each week. Last year he was forced to spend a total of six months away from Washington.

New Secretary of State.

AS A RESULT of these absences and the fact that Mr. Hull moves more slowly now, the president has found himself calling upon Undersecretary Sumner Welles, who has now virtually become secretary of state. More and more frequently now, when the president picks up the telephone he calls Welles instead of Hull. He finds that Welles has the facts at his finger-tips and works faster.

Hull's answers of late have grown more vague. This is partly his cautious temperament, partly age. Once Hull was proud of the fact that he was the only member of the cabinet maintaining daily contact with the press. But now sometimes a week goes by without a press conference.

All of the recent speeches have been made by Welles, which makes the old gentleman a bit touchy. In fact he wondered why it was that Welles rather than he was asked to speak for the state department in the Herald-Tribune Forum. The answer was that the president specifically requested Welles to do the job.

But the secretary is determined to stick it out until the last horn blows—and he may be able to continue.

Wickard—In or Out?

TWO MEN from Coon Rapid, Ia., met in Washington seven weeks ago and made a bet about the demise of Claude Wickard as a cabinet officer.

Said A. E. "Red" Bowman, sugar expert of the WPB: "Wickard is on the skids; he won't last till the first of May."

Said corn farmer Bob Garst, "I admit he's on the skids, but here's ten dollars that says it will take longer than May 1st."

Last week the two men met again in Washington, just after the president had stripped Wickard of power and put Chester Davis in control.

"Here's your ten bucks," said Garst to Bowman.

"But Wickard isn't out yet," responded Bowman.

"Aw, hell," said Garst, "I won't stand on a technicality."

For one thing, it would give us a chance to earn service bars, and they certainly would brighten up the uniform." . . . Park By Another Name.

WYOMING'S erudite Senator Joe O'Mahoney is blazing mad at his old friend Secretary Ickes for turning the famous Jackson Hole hunting and grazing area into a national monument.

Some of the leading cattle men also are irate because they say it will remove vitally needed grazing land at a time when meat and feed are so important. Some 20,000 cattle could be grazed on the Jackson Hole area, the cattle men say.

Ickes, however, has met this argument immediately by ruling that cattle shall not be disturbed, and that cattle men can continue their grazing activities in the area, exactly as they have in the past.

However, the friendly row between O'Mahoney and Ickes goes deeper. For a long time, John D. Rockefeller, who owns a large part of Jackson Hole, has wanted to give it to the government as a national park. But Senator O'Mahoney and many Wyomingites were opposed. Furthermore, it takes an act of congress to create a national park, so O'Mahoney had Ickes blocked.

However, the law provides that the secretary of the interior may create a "national monument" without an act of congress. Actually there is not much difference between a national park and a national monument, except in the size and the name.

So Secretary Ickes has now taken advantage of the Rockefeller gift and made Jackson Hole a national monument.

Note: When Ickes took over Jackson Hole he surrounded the ranch of his bitterest newspaper critic, Eleanor Patterson of the Washington Times Herald, with a national monument, which should enhance its value.

Merry-Go-Round.

SAM BLEDSOE, Number One aide to Claude Wickard, has resigned because he didn't want to be caught in the cross-fire between Wickard and Chester Davis. . . . When newsmen saw Finnish Minister Procope dashing into the state department the other day, they speculated on peace between Finland and Russia. Real fact is, however, Procope was dropping in to pay an installment on the Finnish debt. . . . Of the re-decorated Argentine chancery in Washington, Ambassador Felipe Espil says with a smile, "This is a change in our foreign policy."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Any day now, the government will announce its wartime policy for civilian vacations.

It probably will be a composite of best wishes from the Office of Defense Transportation, the War Production Board, the War Manpower Commission, the Rubber administrator, the Petroleum administrator, and the Office of Price Administration.

If I knew the exact wording, I would be psychic, because it hasn't been written yet. But I can give you a nutshell version. It's going to be "Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water."

In other words: Take a vacation, folks. You need it. You deserve it. It will be both an antidote and preventive medicine for war nerves. It'll zoom your morale. By all means, take a vacation—but don't go anywhere.

IF THE country's 130,000,000 cleave to the government's wartime policy, there will be more "wish-you-were-here" postcards sent from backyards and on-the-trolley-and-busline golf courses than ever before. If they don't cleave, look out for the ax on all vacation travel.

As a matter of fact, no matter what the government's hopes and wishes are, due to car driving and rail travel restrictions, stay-at-home vacations are going to be a necessity almost everywhere.

The American Automobile Association has been seeking a clarification of 1943 vacation policies and it is pretty positive now that there will be no relaxation of present automobile mileage controls. On the other hand, it is likely that OPA rationing regulations will be revised to prohibit any gasoline beyond that provided in the "A" books for vacation driving anywhere. This could be done by prohibiting the holders of other than "A" cards from purchasing any gasoline anywhere outside of their own residence areas.

SO MUCH for automobile travel. Train and bus passenger accommodations already are taxed almost to the limit and if would-be vacationers start any stampede on those forms of travel, ODT Chief Joseph B. Eastman already has warned that rationing will result, and there won't be any pleasure junketing in that ration book either.

According to the A. A. A., hardest hit by the vacation-at-home policy will be the hotels and vacation centers, especially those remote from large cities, and the owners of seashore or mountain cabins which are farther than the gasoline limits from home.

On the other hand, the Coney Islands, Venices, and so forth of the nation probably will have a boom summer.

Words of the Wise

What About Colleges?

MISS ETHLYN WALKER doesn't believe in our American craze for "higher educations." Frankly, she doesn't consider them either "higher" or "educational." And she fervently hopes that war will either liquidate them for the present or force them to do a job on themselves.

That seems strange coming as it does from a young lady who was graduated only five years ago from one of our best eastern women's schools. There was nothing painful about the process. Dad didn't have to mortgage the old farm . . . Mom didn't need to take in washing. Ethlyn had all the fancy frills she required. Yet she believes her four years were worse than wasted and that war, horrible as it may be, is worth the price if it knocks the college craze out of the national noodle.

"For it is just a craze," says Ethlyn. The simple truth is—America is not a student nation. Obviously there are certain professions which require college preparation. Such courses should be really free and those who enter them should be given all possible state and federal aid. But not one out of fifty students have any real love for books. They go to college for many reasons . . . because everyone else is going . . . so Mary can make a smarter marriage or Bill can acquire better business contacts . . . or because it boosts the whole family to a higher social plane. But it rarely adds a mite of real wisdom or culture to Mary's or Jim's mental equipment.

"To the contrary, it sends them into a world without the slightest idea of what real life is all about but fortified that a piece of parchment or a sorority or fraternity membership will offset all deficiencies. And for the poor youngsters who must work their way through, a college course brings hours of cruel torment, with an attitude toward our supposed Democracy which may warp him for life.

"I do not believe any youngster should be admitted to college until he or she has supported himself by practical work, outside the campus, for at least one year. This will give him at least a vague sense of values. He will learn the fundamental rules of self respect and good citizenship. Otherwise he will graduate without enough common sense and adaptability to superintend a goldfish bowl.

"You may conclude from this that my own life at college was a failure. It was not. I had as much happiness as any girl in my class and was quite as much elated over my 'progress'. But I have done considerable thinking since my graduation and I firmly believe that most 'higher education' is the most demoralizing experience we can inflict upon Young America.

"WE AMERICANS BOAST MORE ABOUT OUR EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM THAN ANY PEOPLE ON EARTH. BUT WE AREN'T EDUCATED—WE'RE SIMPLY PROCESSED IN SHALLOW AND INFANTILE FORMS OF SNOBOCRACY."

So there's one young collegian's idea of our vaunted "higher education." How's your vote? Do you think the American college does a real job? Does it qualify its students for practical life—for honest thinking? Or are its graduates still wet behind the ears? And would a long, tough war be the best cure for what ails us?

U. S. Keeps Watch Over Bushes At Judge's Porch

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Franklin county's Common Pleas Judge John R. King is convinced the federal government is both thorough and patient.

Six years ago government workers appeared at Judge King's home here to inform him that two barberry bushes at each side of his front steps would have to be removed because of the danger of barberry rust to wheat. The next day a truckload of men arrived to take the bushes away, but left without them because they weren't sure the bushes were barberry.

The third day a specialist appeared to identify the bushes, and on the fourth a second truckload of men came and finally took them away.

Not long ago another truck and some more men again appeared at the judge's home. They reminded him of the barberry bushes which had been removed six years ago, and told him:

"We're following up that job. We've come to see if we left any roots that might have sprouted."

Nominate College For Outstanding Mother's Award

OXFORD, O.—(INS)—Because she has four sons and 300 "daughters" Western college co-eds have chosen their president, Mrs. Alexander Thomson, to be their candidate for America's outstanding mother of 1943.

"Ordinarily," they said in nominating her, "college students think only of their own mothers on Mother's day. But in the two years Mrs. Thomson has been with us we have come to know and admire and love her. She has often called the Western community one big family, and because this is true we think of her as the head of the college family."

"She has inspired us with her sincere, war belief in the high ideals she would have us strive toward. We know from experience the warmth of her personality, her willingness to talk with us, listen to us, counsel us, laugh with us."

Mrs. Thomson has been at Western college for two years. She has four sons, one serving in the army, one in the navy, one with a Red Cross field unit overseas and one who holds a vital war position in nearby Hamilton.

KNOCKED OUT

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—(U.P.)—Mugs, the Zoo giraffe, during a cold spell in California, where it is always warm, slipped and fell on the ice. Trying to regain its feet it skidded and fell again, kicking itself in the jaw for a knockout the first time it is believed, in zoological history that a giraffe has ever knocked itself out. Zoo attendants with the aid of a block and tackle, got him on all fours again and he is still there.

After the routine business of the association, report of the P. T. A. congress, held in Elyria Tuesday, was given by Mrs. Roy Beck. Mrs. Charles Frarty recounted the program of the last council session. Mrs. Warren Foot spoke of the work of the preschool clinic and urged the cooperation of parents in the vital work.

The attractive bird houses, made by the children of Western school, were on display. They showed a worthwhile interest in that project.

Refreshments were served at the close of the evening by Miss Conn and her committee. The attendance award was won by the first grade pupils, who are taught by Miss Gaubaugh.

Open house will be observed in May instead of the association's regular meeting.

The committee in charge of the meeting was comprised of Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hartwell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Lown, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. James Trine. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nelson of Springfield, were guests.

B. Fairfax Letters for Service Men

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I've been engaged to an officer in the army. I'm 19 years old and he's 24. I've seen him only once in the four years he's been in the service, as we became engaged by mail, and now he's overseas. I know we love each other, because we grew up together. He used to write every day, but it has dwindled down to only one a week. Whenever he writes he asks how the money is coming along, which we're saving toward the time when we marry. He wants me to meet him at the docks when he returns and be married immediately.

About eight months ago I met a young soldier who became very fond of me. I dated him, because I felt sorry for him, and didn't tell him about my engagement. All his furloughs are taken just to be with me. Mother doesn't like me to go out with him, and she opens my letters and makes all kinds of threats and nasty remarks about my friendship with this boy.

Do you think I ought to stop corresponding with him without telling him I'm engaged and about my mother's opening his letters? I know it will hurt him, but I must do something. Do you think the officer, to whom I'm engaged, should plan so much on marriage, as we haven't seen each other in four years?

Judy

The honorable thing for you to do would be to tell this young soldier you've been engaged for two years, in fact it's the only decent thing to do. It would not be necessary for you to say anything concerning your mother and what she has done to break up your affair with him.

It's going to be pretty tough on the young officer overseas if he should hear you've been going with another man in his absence.

It might be well, as you mention, to write him a carefully worded letter suggesting that you renew your friendship for some weeks or months—as you've been separated for such a long period of time—instead of meeting him at the docks and being married immediately. This will give you both a chance to see how you feel toward each other after such a long separation. Meanwhile do the square thing by the other fellow.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

The Officers' Mess is the equivalent of a gentleman's club, I understand, and yet I've heard of officers wearing civilian clothes at mess. My late husband, who was an officer, always said such a procedure was impossible.

Officer's Widow

According to Lieut. Commdr. L. P. Lovette, authority on naval customs, only extraordinary circumstances are a sufficient excuse for officers to wear civilian clothes at mess. Officers are required to be prompt at meals and to seat themselves with the president of the mess. By the way, one of the oldest customs is that religion and ladies should not be discussed in a gentleman's mess.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

REASON IS BASIC

Though its application fits various kinds of situations, the purpose of a hold-up play, delaying the use of a winning honor, is basic. It is usually to provide against a particular one of the two defenders having the lead at some later time when he can do damage. Ninety per cent of such plays are during No Trump contracts, but there also are times when suit contracts depend on their use.

Don't try to defend that bidding. South's second call was very strong, his reverse bid of spades at the range of two. Most Norths would have bid 3-No Trumps after hearing it, but this one felt that, with five cards indicated in hearts, he was strong enough to hop to game. He had plenty of confidence in his partner's playing ability, but it proved to be misplaced, as the contract could have been made, but wasn't.

Winning the spade J lead with the A South then took the diamond 8 with dummy's J, so he could finesse the heart 10. West won and returned the spade 2, the Q and K then taking two tricks. Later the diamond A set the contract.

If South had reasoned a bit, he would have realized that the spade lead, in a suit he had bid, was probably from a short holding. The safety play was to treat it as a doubleton and let it win, then could have been put in the lead to cash his other spade winner, unless he had the diamond A, which he did not. In the meantime, South could have discarded one of his spade losers on the fourth diamond and one on a club. By this procedure, he would have limited himself to one trick lost in spades, one in hearts and one in diamonds.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I'll tell him right away," Adams answered. Then I hung up the receiver and sat down near Mary.

"Tedious waiting for the rest of the cast to arrive," she gibed, but it was a very short wait before Dr. Twitchell and Katharine came.

"A feared injury to the knee will be best," the surgeon said. "How have you decided that it happened?"

"That small rug over there slipped," Mary answered, "and I fell in a heap."

"I'll just phone to the drugstore for necessary things," he said. "We must put this leg in a cast. That won't be pleasant for you," he told Mary, "but it's your best bet."

"When ought I to notify my family?" Noel asked.

"You may go now," the physician said. 'Tell them I said there was no danger, but your wife must undergo severe pain in the treatment, so I sent you away until I have time to make her comfortable."

Noel's Mission.

"I'll try to make things seem plausible," Noel said. "Of course my father knows, but he can be depended upon not to give the show away."

We had proof of this a half hour later. By that time Mary's left leg had been encased in a cast, all her make-up had been removed and her pallor accentuated with powder by Katharine, and crutches were propped against the head of the couch. Then I telephoned the apartment of the elder Veritzens, and Philip, Olga and Olina hurried over under Noel's escort.

"But this is terrible," the great impressario said, looking genuinely alarmed, as his regal wife and stepdaughter bent over Mary with tender solicitude. "Are you in much pain, dear child?" he asked.

"Not any, now," Mary answered truthfully, suppressing a giggle.

He turned to Dr. Twitchell.

"When can she go on?"

All Play Their Roles.

"That I cannot tell," the surgeon replied gravely, "not for two or three weeks, at least."

"There will be no serious injury?" Noel asked anxiously, playing well his role.

"Not if she behaves herself," Dr. Twitchell replied.

"I'll see that she does that," Noel promised. Then his father went into action, after consulting his wrist watch.

"The switchboard operator will be there now," he said. "Mary, my dear, will it disturb you if I use your telephone?"

"Of course not," she said, and a minute later he gave crisp, rapid directions.

"Miss Yates? My daughter-in-law has suffered a severe sprain from a fall, and will not be able to go on for two or three weeks. Will you notify every member of the cast to be on hand at ten-thirty for a rehearsal? Tell Miss Constance Bridgeman to be ready to go on in Mrs. Veritzen's role. No, it will not be a permanent injury. Thank you; I'll tell her. Good-bye."

"Miss Yates is very much concerned about you," he said to Mary, then spoke to Katharine.

"Will you be able to remain with Mary?" he asked.

"As much as she will need me," Katharine said sedately. "I will attend to all treatment and will stay with her whenever Noel is absent. He can do everything necessary except treatment of her injury."

"Then, if you'll excuse me," he said, "I'll hurry back, for I have much to do."

"We will go with you," Olga said. "Mary should rest now. But we will come often, dearest," she assured Mary as she, Olina and Philip left the room.

"I think that was very successfully staged," Katharine said.

"To make it convincing," I said, "I must telephone Mary's uncle at once, but I will do that from my father's apartment."

Then I went back to my father, found Adams was still in attendance, and telephoned my husband. He was convincingly shocked and said he would come at once to the hotel.

"But I will come to Dad's suite first," he said. "Stay there till I arrive, please. I have a message for you."

Recipes to Stretch the Meat Ration

By BETSY NEWMAN

WE CAN stretch our meat ration with various things. Bread crumbs come first to mind, but we can also use cereals to make the meat we are entitled to go further. I'll give you one recipe with oatmeal and another with bread crumbs.

Today's Menu

Meat Patties or Veal Cakes
Whipped Sweet Potatoes
Creamed Onions
Crisp Carrot and Turnip Sticks
Apple Pie Tea

Meat Patties

2 tbsps. bacon fat
2 tbsps. finely minced onion
1 lb. ground beef or lamb
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. celery salt
½ c. dry oatmeal
½ c. milk

Melt bacon fat, add onion and cook over low fire for 3 minutes. Mix remaining ingredients, add onion and fat remaining in pan and blend until mixture is very smooth. Form into patties and roll in flour. Brown slowly on all sides in well greased frying pan. Makes 6 to 10 patties, according to size.

Meat Cakes

1 lb. chopped veal
¾ lb. soaked bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. fat or butter
1 tsp. chopped onion
Dash of pepper

Mix all ingredients except fat, and shape into round cakes. Melt fat in baking pan and brown cakes in it, first one side, then the other. You can use either cooked or raw meat in these cakes. If raw meat is used, cover pan for slow cooking after cakes are browned. Serves 4.

Floating Island.

4 eggs
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cup irradiated evaporated milk and
1½ cup boiling water, mixed or
3 cups scalded bottled milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Save out 2 egg whites and use 2 whole eggs and 2 egg yolks to make soft custard. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and salt; add hot milk and cook over boiling water, stirring constantly. It will be done when it coats a silver spoon. Cool and add vanilla. Beat remaining egg whites stiff, fold in 2 tablespoons sugar. Cook whites by dropping spoonfuls on hot milk before making the custard, or by placing spoonfuls on pan of ice water and baking in slow oven or broiler until delicately brown. Pour custard into serving dishes and top with browned egg white. You can garnish with fruit wedges if you like. Serves 6.

HOROSCOPE

For Friday, April 9.

Push and purpose may be able to make this day an unusually successful and progressive one. There are certain stubborn obstacles or crystallized conditions which must be met by determined application. Brilliant ideas and practically constructive tactics may insure profitable and enduring results.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which their active and constructive mental abilities sustained by logic and sound judgment may eventually assure notable success and progress. In personal relations there is hint of duplicity and subterfuge.

A child born on this day should have a keen and active intellect, backed up by sturdy characteristics as well as good luck.

GHOST OF MY LOVE +

By Oren Arnold

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER VII

Bill St. Clair gave no sign. He just sat there, patient, motionless as the ghost town itself.

"Do you—understand?" Rosemary pleaded. "I said I was Harry Boyle's wife! We were married!"

He nodded, slowly, looking at her with strange hurt eyes.

"Bill I—it's all so horrible! I met him when he was in a gay mood and I was, too. We were in a crowd. You don't know how Harry is. He seemed awfully romantic and everything, and I had been working hard, and—and—we were all dancing and everything and he asked me a lot of questions about my work and then he made love to me."

Again Bill nodded.

"He told me the nicest things, and he had a lot of money. And at midnight a bunch of us got in his car and rode somewhere and Harry and I were married. I was in a whirl. I still am!"

Bill St. Clair's lips were very tight, but still he said nothing.

"I never lived with him, not even for one minute. Honest, Bill!"

They both waited. Then Bill said, "Why?"

She was looking down the deserted street. "Because he—when we were driving back toward Washington, early in the morning, he was getting drunk. I—I don't drink, Bill. I'm not so goody-goody, but I just don't. And he—Harry kept—kept telling another girl what he called 'good-bye'."

"Telling her—good-bye."

"Yes. He must have kissed her 50 times. There in the car before all of us. The others thought it was screamingly funny."

"It wasn't," said Bill.

"I made them let me out, and they were too tipsy to care, then. But next morning—Harry came to me."

"At the office?"

"Yes. You won't remember it, but I slipped out for most of the morning. Harry and I talked in that new cafe place. I—I learned, then and there, that I never loved him. I had just been a silly fool. I wanted to run away. Go anywhere. That's when I—when I began to act queer around the office, I suppose. You were so kind to me. You and your father."

Bill said. "You looked unhappy. But I never guessed this."

"No. I told no one. And Harry wasn't really interested in me. He was interested in what I knew!"

"What you knew?"

"Yes! Oh Bill, he—he's so shrewd! So under-handed. That morning in the cafe I swore to myself I'd try to like him, because after all I had married the man. I even said I'd move to his apartment that night, and agreed to have an 'announcement' party. And all the while we talked, he was so—so oozy!"

"Oozy! How so, Rosemary?"

"Well, I can't explain exactly. But he kind of lulled me. I was so anxious to—to get back the feeling I first had last evening, you understand. I never could. But he talked a long time about my work, and Bill."

"Yes?"

"It was I who told him about this very air field project, here in the west."

She let that sink in. Bill made no comment.

* * *

"I told him, and I said I would help him get a job with our department, if I could. I thought if I had a husband, I might be able to—to reform him, I guess. He was interested. He asked more and more, and I told him more and more. More than I should."

"I see. Then Boyle, uh, took that information, Rosemary, and used it. Is that what you mean to say?"

"Yes. You heard about the graft!"

"He kept within the law, you know."

"He would! But I knew! I knew I did it, Bill! It wasn't intentional. But it was still my fault. And now—he holds that over me as a—a threat!"

Bill nodded, slowly, knowingly. "He could do that. You say you never stayed with him, though?"

"Never! By noon he was trying to get me to go into a crooked deal with him. I hated him more than I had when he kissed the girl good-bye. And I hated myself worse. I still do!"

"Now, now."

Uncle Pete Quincy, down the street at the Lightning City Hotel, had come out looking for them. "WHOO-O-O Hah-h-h-!" he yodeled.

His call echoed startlingly among the ghost buildings here in Purple Canyon.

"Be down in 10 minutes, Uncle Pete!" Bill called back.

Rosemary sighed in utter dejection now. She sat there slumped, miserable. "You can take me back to town," she murmured. "But I'll never forget your kindness, Little Boss."

"We are not through talking yet," said he. "Is there any more you could tell me about this Boyle?"

She thought a long moment. "Nothing. Except that I—I threw him over, publicly. After he did me the same way."

"Oh? How so?"

"In a cafe again. I was—moping, I guess, and Ruth Adams took me out one night. You know Ruth; she's sweet. She and her husband. They took me to the Travis roof for dinner. And—it would happen—Harry Boyle and his gang showed up there. He discovered me."

"Embarrassing."

"Yes. He set in to make it so. He made up to some cheap little entertainer, as drippy as he. Fawned all over her. Then—came to my table. Ruth and her husband didn't know about him—I'd kept the marriage secret. But he—oh Bill, the way he insulted me there—I was furious at him. I told him exactly what I thought and I slapped him and—"

Rosemary broke down in tears. Bill let her cry for a minute or two. Then he touched her hand, patted it, squeezed it in a way that said more than words could have. When she forced control again, she saw Uncle Pete Quincy coming.

"Th-there's one other thing you must know before you send me away," she managed. "I've failed you miserably, I know. On this job, at every turn. I muffed it in Option. I led you to a—ghost town. But before I go—Bill, there's still danger, and you must beware. That Boyle is a devil! And Bill—the man you met at the railroad station in Option—I never told you his name, but he's here on the scene, for something. That was Harry Boyle."

Cat Hitches Rides On Trains, Always Comes Back Home

SELKIRK, N. Y.—(U.P.)—This is a tale of Selkirk Susie, an unusual cat! She is, in fact, a cat with a reputation.

Susie's home is the big railroad yards at Selkirk, where she appeared one day seven years ago. Her railroad-men friends say she has been under every train on the West Shore without so much as a scratch.

Once Susie boarded a refrigerator car laden with fish and showed up at Dewitt, 140 miles away. No one knows how she did it, but three days later she was back in Selkirk.

Susie's favorite pastime is to scramble atop trains moving through the five-mile long yard. When she reaches the end of the yards, she either hops off and walks back or else leaps to the top of a train moving in the other direction and rides back.

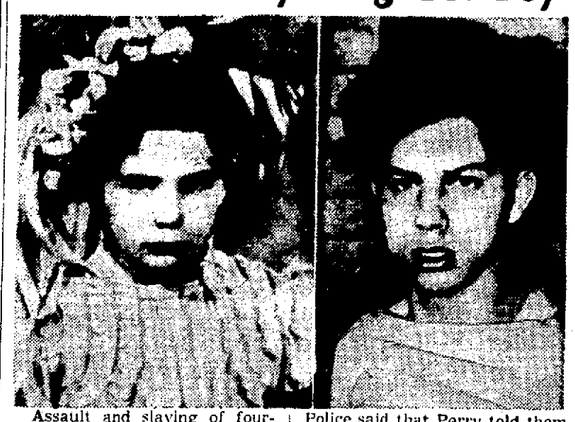
Child Slain by Neighbor Boy



Assault and slaying of four-year-old Theresa Williams, left above, has been confessed by Earl Perry, 17, a neighbor, right, according to Pittsburgh police. Police said that Perry told them he strangled the girl, assaulted her and buried her under three feet of earth in the basement of his home.

BLAZE LEVELS FARM DWELLING

ASHLAND—Large quantities of home canned vegetables, fruits and meats were part of the toll when fire destroyed the home of Willard Tanner north of Red Haw late Monday. Cause of the blaze is undetermined.

Only articles saved from the home was a suit of clothes belonging to Tanner and a bed belonging to the Tanners' child who was carried from the house in the bed. The structure was burned to the ground in 45 minutes, a high wind preventing Polk and Ashland firemen from making any headway with the flames.
